Making Strides for Inclusion and Choice in Ukraine

Until very recently, the only options for educating children with disabilities in Ukraine was to send the child away to a segregated boarding school; integrate the child into a mainstream school (but with little accommodation, and with only parents as a support); or simply allow the child to languish at home. As a result, a project known as “Inclusive Education for Children with Disabilities in Ukraine”, (funded in part by the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA), was developed to initiate change. The project hopes to provide Ukrainian parents and their children with choices, and integrate children with disabilities into mainstream Ukrainian society, supported by teachers and specialists.

The Inclusive Education project was established as a partnership of two Canadian organizations cooperating with three national organizations in Ukraine. In Canada, the Canadian Centre for Disability Studies (CCDS) in Winnipeg and URDC at Grant MacEwan College each accepted responsibility for financing their portions of the project. The project overall is valued at $6.84 million with $4.69 million having been contributed by CIDA.

CCDS is the project’s executing agency, which coordinates partners and reports to CIDA. URDC MacEwan coordinates the participation of member organizations belonging to the Canada Ukraine Research Team (CURT), namely, faculty from: Drahomanov National Pedagogical University; the Institute of Special Pedagogy of the Academy of Pedagogical Sciences of Ukraine; the Psychology Department, Faculty of Education, University of Alberta; and individual professors from several other universities in Canada and Ukraine (Calgary, Victoria, Edmonton, Lviv, Simferopol).

The National Assembly of Invalids of Ukraine, and the Institute for National Upgrading of Teachers are also partners in Ukraine, while the Ukrainian Foundation Step by Step is a partner and project coordinator.

The project has three main program components: civil society, education and policy development (to advance civil society and inclusive education initiatives). Working with the Ministry of Education and Science of Ukraine and the Ministry of Social Protection of Ukraine (among others), in building an inclusive education system requires: 1) legislation and policy; 2) preparing school administrative leaders and providing ongoing education for personal and professional development; 3) university training for teachers and service providers to learn to support children with disabilities in the classroom; 4) a barrier free environment and necessary communication tools; and 5) methods for assessing and planning.

The project will be implemented between April 2008 and March 2013 within two pilot regions in Ukraine: Lviv and Simferopol. Other locations are invited to participate in the dissemination of project results. The mission of the project is to strengthen the capacity of targeted institutions to develop inclusion policies for children with disabilities under the age of 18.

along with their families, to establish inclusive education programs and strengthen civil society to advocate and deliver services.

However, research shows that fundamental change with regard to issues involving the disabled comes bottom-up from the grass-roots level, working in partnership with top-down changes. “For the first time national and regional levels of government will bring on board the most motivated partners – the parents of children with disabilities,” says Yuri Konkin. “The whole community will change to accommodate such children. It will become more tolerant.”

Although inclusion can be more costly and Ukraine is not a wealthy country, the Ukrainian government has consistently shown support for the principles of this project. It knows that integrating children with disabilities into school and society, and helping them get employment is more efficient in the long-term.

Wife of Ukrainian President Offers Encouragement

From September 18 to 21, 2008 the Artek International Children’s Center in Crimea, Ukraine hosted the Artek Dialogs Annual Educational Forum, organized by Ukraine 3000 International Charitable Foundation, with official support from UNESCO and the Ukrainian government.

The goal of the Forum is to create a system of annual communication between representatives of Ukrainian educational institutions and educators from countries around the world. The two groups work together to analyze trends in education, and develop recommendations for best practices in Ukraine. This year, the forum included discussion about the challenges of inclusive education for persons with disabilities in Ukraine.

Among the participants of the sessions were Head of the Supervisory Board of the Ukraine 3000 International Charitable Foundation Kateryna Yushchenko, wife of the President of Ukraine, Victor Yushchenko, along with 350 participants representing the education, business, public, youth and charitable organizations from Ukraine, Belarus, Russia, Poland, Moldova, Kazakhstan, Azerbaijan, Great Britain, Germany, Turkey and Canada.

Canada’s Grant MacEwan College was represented at the Forum by Anna Horban, Director of MacEwan’s Representative Office. In her speech on the problems of quality education for children and youth with disabilities, Horban introduced the new Canada/Ukraine project, “Inclusive Education for Children with Disabilities in Ukraine”, funded in part by CIDA and implemented by the Canadian Centre for Disability Studies and MacEwan, as two Canadian partners. She also reminded participants of the more than 12 years of MacEwan involvement in Ukraine through different educational projects, such as the Business Management Studies Diploma program in Kyiv, which has graduated over 250 students thus far, and has become a great promoter of the western style of business education.
Mrs. Yushchenko expressed her hope that the next Artek Dialogs Forum will be marked by the same freedom and openness, and wished participants luck in solving the problems of the educational system and the strength to make it happen. As First Lady of Ukraine and Chairperson of Ukraine 3000 Foundation, Kateryna Yushchenko is active in charitable, historical and cultural activities. One of her main priorities is to address the difficult social issues currently troubling Ukraine, particularly health care for children, education, homeless and orphaned children, and integrating the disabled into society. Her Foundation, Ukraine 3000, a non-governmental charitable organization founded in 2001, is dedicated to encouraging the revival and development of a tradition of charity and community responsibility in Ukraine.

Government Grant Brings Two More Ukrainian Specialists to Alberta

In the fall of 2008, MacEwan and the University of Alberta again welcomed a pair of specialists from Ukraine, who came to study inclusive education for six weeks. As with the two specialists who visited the province in 2007, they each made the journey thanks to receiving a $5000 Alberta International Educational Award.

Yuliya Kolomiets is a nurse with a Masters of Education degree, and a lecturer at the Drahomanov National Pedagogical University in Kyiv. Her particular focus is on education for children with severe speech disorders. Vladyslav Tyschenko has a Ph.D. from the Institute of Special Pedagogy, Academy of Pedagogical Sciences of Ukraine. His special interest is the intellectual component of speech development in children with cognitive delays, and Ukrainian Language Arts for children with severe speech disabilities.

The two specialists familiarized themselves with the system of special education in Canada by visiting a variety of schools and rehabilitation centres. They visited MacEwan, the University of Alberta and Concordia University College, where they were able to study both how Alberta trains its special education experts and how students with special needs are supported at post-secondary institutions in the province.

“The Canadian experience of support for students with special needs is very important for Ukraine. There are many different forms of special education, excellent equipment and broad opportunities for students here in Alberta,” said Kolomiets. “We had a great experience and got a lot of information, which we shall use in our work with Ukrainian students in the Drahomanov National Pedagogical University, and in our research in the field of special education,” added Tyschenko.

While in Alberta, they also had an opportunity to visit the Rocky Mountains and the Royal Tyrrell Museum in Drumheller. Kolomiets and Tyschenko were particularly impressed with the local Ukrainian community for their great work in maintaining and developing Ukrainian language and culture in Canada.
Chair of International Health Launched at Ukrainian Centre

College Recognizes First Donor by Naming Lecture Theatre

On December 9, 2008 Grant MacEwan College in Edmonton launched an endowment fund for a Chair in International Health at its Ukrainian Resource and Development Centre (URDC). This is the first such medical endowment in the Ukrainian diaspora.

The first two donors giving $100,000 each were Drs. Peter and Doris Kule and the Ukrainian Foundation for College Education (UFCE). Their $200,000 gift was tripled to $600,000 by the Grant MacEwan College Foundation, using finances provided by the Alberta Access to the Future fund. This represents 20% of the $3.0 million target to be raised for the endowment. Annual revenue from the endowment will provide a budget for the health projects to be administered through MacEwan’s Faculty of Health and Community Studies (HCS), in partnership with various universities and other health institutions in several countries.

The growing health crises in Ukraine and other countries of the world was the stimulus for UFCE and URDC to have taken this unique initiative. Life expectancy among men and women in Ukraine is declining. More than one-half of these premature deaths could be prevented if people changed their lifestyle and/or had better access to medical care.

Health leaders in Edmonton felt that they can make a difference by sharing knowledge, conducting joint research and projects and sharing their best practices in health management. Providing Ukrainian health institutions easier access to information and partners in North America will help mobilize health protection efforts in Ukraine. The Edmonton leadership team includes: Dr. Geraldine Nakonechny, former Dean of HCS; Dr. Wayne Tymchak, cardiologist at the University of Alberta Hospital and President of the Medical Project Osvita Foundation; Shirley Galenza, MacEwan director of the Professional Centre for Nurse Upgrading; Ann Semotiuk, Danin Bodnar, Donna Kowalishin, Roman Petryshyn and Dr. Lesia Boychuk.

Planners have begun defining a number of projects to be undertaken by URDC’s Kule Visiting Scholar Fund and the new endowment for the Chair of International Health. Dr. Roxolana Horbovyj has agreed to be the first speaker sponsored under the program and will be part of MacEwan’s annual Speakers Series in Health and Community Studies. She will speak to an Edmonton audience on March 31, 2009 on the topic of tele-health education activities between health care workers in North America and those in Ukraine.

On December 9, executive Officers of MacEwan gathered along with about 100 family and friends to recognize the generosity of Drs. Peter and Doris Kule. Provost Dr. Janet Paterson-Weir, Chief Financial Officer Brent Quinton, Vice-President of Fund Development, Dale Bailey, Dean of Health and Community Studies, Sharon Bookhalter, and Dean of the MacEwan School of Business, Elsie Elford, all attended.

In addition to being the first donor to the Chair of International Health, the Kules also contributed $250,000 to the Endowment for Nursing Technology in the Faculty of Health and Community Studies. Dr. Paterson-Weir, MacEwan Provost and Executive Vice-President Academic, greeted the Kules and welcomed their initiative.

Speaker Dr. Ernie Skakun, Vice-President of UFCE, committed UFCE’s contribution and described how Peter Kule had challenged UFCE to match the Kules’ gift. Dr. Tymchak greeted the Kules from the University of Alberta, the Ukrainian Medical Association of North America (UMANA) and the Osvita Foundation.
As this is the Kules’ third major endowment at URDC, Dr. Roman Petryshyn thanked the Kules for their continued support to the Ukrainian Resource and Development Centre at MacEwan.

Master of Ceremonies, Richard Cook from the MacEwan Foundation, explained that the Kules’ two gifts represent a total gift of $1,050,000 when tripling of the gifts is taken into account. Peter and Doris unveiled the plaque naming the Kule Health Lecture Theatre located in the world-class Robbins Health Centre. The Kule Health Lecture Theatre is an international communication facility and the largest lecture hall in the Robbins Centre.

Of particular note on this auspicious occasion was the gathering of academics from various universities where there already exist Kule endowments. The following individuals were introduced to those present, and together, had pictures taken with Drs. Peter and Doris Kule: Dr. Andriy Chirovsky, Dr. Andriy Nahachewsky, Dr. Natalie Kononenko, Dr. Roman Petryshyn, Dr. Serge Cipko and Jars Balan.

UFCE Holds Visioning Retreat

On September 12 and 13, 2008, the Ukrainian Foundation for College Education (UFCE) held a visioning retreat whose purpose was two-fold: to review UFCE’s past accomplishments and discuss its vision and goals for the future; and, to explore new fundraising initiatives so that UFCE can provide a greater level of financial support to both URDC and the Ukrainian Canadian community.

The timing of the visioning retreat was particularly appropriate in light of the fact that UFCE has a number of new members, who benefitted from the close examination of UFCE’s past and present, and were able to contribute to planning the organization’s future.

The focus of attention was on UFCE’s new campaign to raise $1.0 million for the new Chair of International Health endowment at URDC. Speakers making presentations at the retreat included: Dr. Peter Kule, Dr. Wayne Tymchak, Dr. Roman Petryshyn, George Zaharia, Mike Henry and Daria Luciw. A report with presentations was prepared and distributed to UFCE Board members.

Alberta Boy Makes Good, Plays it Forward

Gene Kinasewich, in whose name the Ukrainian Foundation for College Education (UFCE) has created a new fund, was a soft-spoken Alberta orphan who became one of the most celebrated student-athletes in the history of Harvard University.

The second-youngest of 13 children of Ukrainian immigrants, Gene was raised in Thorsby, Alberta. Both his mother and father died when he was 10. By the time he was 13, Gene was selling newspapers and running errands for a grocery. He also played a lot of hockey. College was something he never gave a thought to until one of his brothers spoke to a Harvard scout. When Gene was asked if he’d like to go to Harvard, he had to ask where it was. He soon found out!

While at Harvard, Gene earned a master’s degree and doctorate in education. In the meantime, he became a college hockey legend famous for both his skill and his sportsmanship. “It was as if his skates never touched the ice, like he was flying,” said one of his opponents’ coaches. Adds a former Harvard teammate, “He was one of the most amazing men I’ve ever met. He was all about helping others, not looking out for himself.”
Gene later held the position of dean at Harvard before moving back to Alberta to help with the family business. Upon his retirement, he returned to live in the Boston area. Before he died in February 2005, Gene became devotedly and passionately involved in the lives of 19 youngsters from Kharkiv, Ukraine. Gene introduced the idea of combining education opportunity with sport to these hockey-playing youngsters – opportunity that would not be available to them back in Ukraine. The Eugene Kinasewich Fund was subsequently established, enabling the 19 youngsters to come to the United States to complete high school, and then attend a post-secondary institution, while continuing to play and grow in the sport of hockey.

Gene’s younger brother, Bob Kinasewich, a retired lawyer, negotiated with Boston to set up a branch of the Eugene Kinasewich Fund in Edmonton. The Fund’s Canadian branch has now been identified as a Designated Fund within the framework of the UFCE Trust. As a result, two of the original 19 students brought to the U.S. by the Eugene Kinasewich Fund are now attending their first of four years at MacEwan and playing hockey for the Griffins. Oleg Koval and Artem Zemelyev are immensely grateful for the opportunity that the Eugene Kinasewich Fund has provided them, and they hope to continue Gene’s legacy of giving. “I remember Gene as a modest person who needed nothing in life but to help others,” says Koval. “And in the future, we plan to give back to our country men in the same way Gene gave to us,” adds Zemelyev.

Kinasewich explains that although the Fund from Boston has and will continue to provide substantial support for Koval and Zemelyev, another $15,000 is required to enable these students to complete their first year of studies and get ready for their future years. Donations to the Fund are most welcome, as are any employment opportunities for the boys while they are in Alberta, so that they can earn and provide some of their own financial support. The provision of living accommodations for the students is also welcome. Your financial and other support will help give these and future Ukrainian students a wonderful opportunity to obtain a world class education in Canada.

You may send your donation to: Bob Kinasewich, 6507 – 132 Street, Edmonton, AB T6H 3Y8. Please make cheques payable to the UFCE Trust, with a notation that the funds are to be directed to the Eugene Kinasewich Fund.

Once again, UFCE’s Ukrainian Open golf tournament (a.k.a. Buck/Diachuk Open) was a resounding success! 72 golfers gathered on August 21 to display their expertise at the Fort-in-View Golf Club. Later that evening, over 100 people enjoyed an excellent supper at the Fort Saskatchewan Legion, after which they were treated to a display of lively, colorful Ukrainian dancing entertainment. Later, they participated in the silent and live auctions, which raised over $8,500 for the UFCE scholarship fund.

Thank-you to the organizational efforts of members of UFCE’s Board of Directors, URDC staff and all others who assisted in making this fundraiser a success.

UFCE extends a special thank-you to the following Sponsors and Donors who helped make this year’s event a success! Your contributions made the difference, and your participation and generosity is very much appreciated.
