Not-for-profit, Ceiba Association, named as Distinguished Alumni

Edmonton--Ceiba Association, an Edmonton-based not-for-profit, was founded in August 2010 by a group of MacEwan University alumni who have one thing in common: their passion for promoting change and social transformation, locally and globally.

A number of former MacEwan University students make up Ceiba’s founders and board of directors: Nick Churchman (Arts Transfer, 2007), Kaitrin Doll (Social Work, 2008), Caitlin Jackson (Arts and Cultural Management, 2008), Christina Kuzyk (Education Transfer, 2009), Michelle Mahe (Community Rehabilitation, 2010), Trina Moyles (Bachelor of Arts, 2010), Andrea Trischuk-Layton (Social Work, 2010) and Craig Worobec (Bachelor of Commerce, 2010).

The process of developing a not-for-profit organization has required a lot of time and effort from its founders and board of directors, who continue to have full-time careers.

However, Ceiba is powered by the efforts of its volunteers. Ceiba provides opportunities for young people to participate in hands-on learning programs that improve local and global communities through initiatives like Project HOPE, Painting for Change and international youth internships.

Ceiba Association will be recognized as a Distinguished Alumni at the Spring Convocation:

When: Thursday, June 14 at 2:00 p.m.
