Know the past. Shape the future: Celebrating Black History Month

Edmonton – MacEwan’s first university-wide Black History Month aims to raise awareness about the contributions made by black Canadians to Canada’s culture and legacy, both past and present.

“Working with students, faculty and staff, we’ve developed a series of events that help celebrate and bring awareness to people of African, Afro Caribbean and Afro-Latino ancestry,” says Irfan Chaudhry, director, Office of Human Rights and Equity. “Through events and presentations, students, faculty, staff and the Edmonton community can experience black history from new perspectives and build on this year’s theme: Know the Past. Shape our Future.

HIGHLIGHTS INCLUDE:

Black History Month Kick-off
The event will showcase African drumming and dance by Sangea Academy, a special spoken-word performance by Edmonton’s poet laureate Ahmed Ali (Knowmadic), and a keynote address by MLA David Shepherd.

Film screenings featuring works by black filmmakers:

Free Angela and all Political Prisoners
A young professor’s social justice activism implicates her in a botched kidnapping attempt that ends in a shootout with four people dead, and her name on the FBI’s Ten Most Wanted list.

Sorry to Bother You
Telemarketer Cassius Green finds himself in a macabre universe after discovering a magical key that leads to material glory. As Green’s career begins to take off, a delusional CEO offers him a salary beyond his wildest dreams, while his friends and co-workers protest corporate oppression.

13th
This documentary outlines how slavery continued in America after the Civil War in the form of criminal punishment and eventually led to the mass incarceration of African-Americans.

Musical performances:

La Connexion Afro Latin Dance Workshop
This interactive and informative performance delves into the cultural comparisons between African and Latino communities.

Sangea Academy
Sangea Academy will lead a West-African drumming and dance workshop, while exploring various drumming techniques.
